In order to make effective decisions to control the spread of COVID-19, health officials need to understand how, when, and where this virus is spreading. Health officials, with guidance from experts at the White House Coronavirus Task Force and here in Minnesota, have analyzed testing results and contact tracing data to understand how the virus is spreading throughout the state. The results show that the virus is moving more quickly between younger adults aged 18-35. Because of this, social settings that attract a younger crowd are the most significant sources of COVID-19 outbreaks. In fact, over 70 percent of COVID-19 outbreaks in Minnesota from June to November have a direct link to a variety of forms of private social gatherings, and in new guidelines on November 13, 2020, there have been changes to environments such as these.

As hospitals express concern about capacity to treat Minnesotans with COVID-19, Governor Walz has dialed back reopening efforts to curb the spread of the virus in Minnesota. Beginning Friday, November 20, broad restrictions will apply temporarily to many sections of our daily lives.

Dial Back, Minnesota

Effective this Friday, November 20, Minnesotans will be asked to stay home for four weeks.

- All bars and restaurants will end dine-in service and operate exclusively with takeout or delivery
- Fitness centers will be closed
- Adult and youth sports practices and competitions will be suspended
- Weddings, funerals, and other similar planned but all receptions and gatherings around the state will be suspended
